Unit 1

Economics -An Introduction

AEFE1X

The laughter of children echoed throughout the children's park of that apartment. Some slided down joyfully down the slide and some went up and down in the see – saw, shouting cheerfully. Others were swinging so high and fast, in the swings as if they were about to reach the sky. Some children were waiting near the swings to play next.

Kavin did not join with any of these children. He sat alone in a corner, staring somewhere. His uncle Mohan noticed Kavin and came near him.

"Kavin, are you going to play with your friends?" asked his uncle as he sat next to Kavin.

"Uncle, everyone teases me, calling me a villager," said Kavin, with tears rolling down his eyes. "Even our Vimalan laughs along with them. I came here for the holidays with so much of excitement. Now, I regret my presence here. I want to go back to our village, uncle," sobbed Kavin.

"Is it so? Where is Vimalan?" asked his uncle and started to search for his son in the crowd.

VI Economics- Lesson 1.indd 183 09-07-2019 12.23.58 PM