team, the nurse must possess the skilled communication techniques.

Good communication between nurse and patient is essential for the successful outcome of individualized nursing care of each patient. To achieve this, nurses should devote time to the patient to communicate with necessary confidentiality and the persons who surround the patient. Good communication is not only based on the physical abilities of nurses, but also on education and experience.

4.2 Concepts and Types of Communication: Concepts

"Before you speak, think: Is it necessary? Is it true? Is it kind? Will it hurt anyone? Will it improve on the silence?"

- Communication is sending and receiving information between two or more people.
- Communication is the process of exchanging information, thoughts, ideas and feeling from one individual to another.
- Communication is the process of passing information and understanding from one person to another.
- Communication is the process of sharing meaning through continuous flow of symbolic messages.
- Communication is irreversible and unrepeatable.
- Communication is culture-specific.
- Communication is the transmission of information, ideas, emotions and skills through the use of symbols, words, pictures, figures, and graph.
- Communication is the process of transmitting ideas, information, and attitudes from the source to a receiver for the purpose of influencing with intent.

4.2.1 Types of Communication

There are two types of communication based on channels of communication

- Verbal
- Non verbal

Verbal communication refers to the form of communication in which message is transmitted verbally which is done by word of mouth and a piece of writing. It is divided into oral communication and written communication

Nursing-Gen_Chapter 04.indd 48 07/05/18 12:43 PM