substituted as an alternative if fruits are not available.

Solid Supplements

Mashed Foods: Mashed food should be given around the 7th and 8th month along with the liquid supplements for the infant.

→ Cereal and Starchy Gruels: Mashed cereals are rice, wheat and ragi which are usually eaten as porridge with the addition of vegetable oil.

→ Vegetables: Cooked, mashed vegetables like potato, green leafy vegetables and carrots can be introduced to get vitamins and minerals in the diet.

→ Fruits: Fruits should be stewed and sieved. Sugar and lime can be added for flavor.

→ Non Vegetarian Food: Egg yolk is given as good source of protein and it is usually introduced in soft custards. Egg white is not given until the infant is 10 months old, as it causes allergic manifestations. Minced, cooked meat or boiled fish with salt can be given.

CASE STUDY

Case study 1

Kavitha has a 6 month year old baby. Outline an appropriate schedule for her to use as a guide for adding solid foods to her baby's diet during the first year of life. What foods are not appropriate at this age?

Activity 2

Guess the nutreints thar are present in the foods listed below

Chapter6_120-155.indd 134 31-03-2018 13:24:58