Pollution And Its Effect

In recent years, environmental pollution has increased so much that it has become a global problem. Almost all cities in Asian countries face this problem. The causes of environmental pollution are quite obvious. Vehicles burn petrol and emit toxic smoke. Various chemical factories pollute the air as well as water. Water is so contaminated because of effluents that both marine and organic life is destroyed. The Ozone layer has developed a big hole due to this pollution and lets in harmful rays. Forests have disappeared.

This environment pollution has begun to affect human health. School children are easy victims to this pollution because they come in direct contact with fumes from the exhaust pipes of the vehicles. Crops have failed in many places. Flora and fauna have been deeply affected. The sea water level has begun to rise and the coastal cities may sink due to this.

We need to pay attention to this as human survival is in grave danger. More and more trees should be planted in every available inch of land. A public awareness programme must be launched to fight this manmade menace.

Task: Study the following diagram and write an article in about 200 words for a magazine on 'Conservation of water'.
