In 1854, court delivered direction that there may not be any restriction to admit children who belongs to lower caste groups. The Caste Hindus and other dominant communities, however, didn't obey the judgment of the court proceedings. In 1865, Secretary of state for India in British Parliament ordered for admission of children who belong to lower caste groups but the condition remains unchanged.

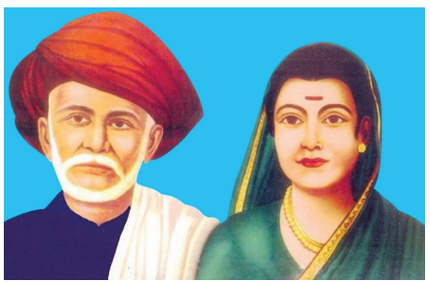

British India in the end part of 19th century supported Brahmin development in all spheres, whereas minorities were denied opportunities in education, society, power and employment sectors. The Non-Brahmins, and minorities (lower caste) who studied in the modern educational institutions were dissatisfied with the government's biased stand. They demanded representation for lower caste groups in government services.

In 1891 the natives Travancore Kingdom submitted the Malayalee Memorial demanding adequate opportunities for native in employment. In 1896, 'Ezhava Memorial' demanded adequate opportunity for 'Averna' (backward communities, in employment and education. Narayana Guru took intense efforts to organize victims of caste system and instated educational institution for them. Even before such movements arose in extreme son. In 1902, Kolhapur Raja Chatrapati Sahu for the first time introduced reservation in governments jobs for Non-Brahmins. Almost simultaneously in the Mysore kingdom the 'Miller Committee' recommended communal distribution of jobs.

Those people who demanded for appropriate representation are Ayothidasa, Singaravelar, Rettamalai Srinivasan, Pitti Theagarayar, Raja of Panagal and many others. Demands put forth by these people were accepted in 1922. Community based representation order was issued in all departments of Madras Presidency. This order is called 128(2). The order has to be implemented in all parts of Chennai Presidency, declared the government.

The efforts taken towards "education to all" in Tamilnadu also spread over to other states of India. Leaders like Jyotirao Phule, Savithribai Phule took onerous efforts in Maharastra for educating the depressed and downtrodden communities.
